

VOA Broadcasting to Central Africa

The Great Lakes region of Africa is the place where the last known genocide in human history took place in 1994. Since then the region has been torn by years of ethnic and political strife. VOA Kirundi/Kinyarwanda is a balancing medium that sets the standards of impartial and comprehensive reporting, promotes democratic values and fosters civil dialogue and reconciliation between political stakeholders. Through the Kirundi/Kinyarwanda language service, the people of the United States speak directly to the citizens of the African Great Lakes region.
