

Let's Learn English Lesson Plan

Introduction: Let's Learn English lesson plans are based on the CALLA approach. See the end of each lesson for more information and resources on teaching with the CALLA approach. CALLA has five lesson elements:

Prepare: Engage students in the topic and identify objectives for the lesson. Find out what students already know about it and motivate them to learn more. Teach new vocabulary.

Present: Present new information. Explain the target learning strategy for the lesson. Model what the students are asked to do. Discuss connections to students' prior knowledge.

Practice: Give students an authentic, active task that they can do in a small group or in pairs. Remind students to use the target learning strategy.

Self-Evaluate: Question students so they will reflect on their own learning. Ask students to evaluate their own learning rather than wait for the teacher to assess them. Find out if using the learning strategy helped students' understanding.

Expand: Guide students on how to apply what they learned to their own lives. Point out other contexts where the learning strategy may help. Make connections between content and language or to the student's first language. When appropriate, request that parents contribute to learning.

Lesson 11: This Is My Neighborhood

Objectives

- Students learn how to make regular plurals
- Students learn to talk about places in a neighborhood
- Students learn to use the strategy, Ask Questions, to get information
- Students learn to express gratitude in English
- Students practice using cardinal numbers indicating quantity

Materials needed:

- Sheets of paper with names of community services: bank, store, library, post office
- Small objects such as stamps, letters, pencils, books, and coins to practice plural form of nouns
- Activity sheet (included at the end of this lesson)

Students may be assigned the web-based homework of viewing the videos for Let's Learn English Lesson 11 before this lesson. See the end of this lesson for more details.

Note to teachers printing this document: The document is in A4 format. To print on US Letter – sized paper, choose the option to "shrink oversized pages" when printing from Acrobat.

Prepare:

(If you share the same native language as your students, this part of the lesson may be conducted in that language. Otherwise, use images and gestures along with simple English to explain.)

Ask students, "What do you do when you want to know something?" Possible student answers may be, 'look it up,' 'ask a teacher,' 'google it,' or 'ask a friend.' Continue, "Of course, in your native language, it is easy to ask a question. But in English it may be harder. In today's lesson, we will use the strategy, Ask Questions, to get information and to practice speaking English."

Pick up a pencil or another common classroom object. Tell students, "I have one pencil." Pick up another and turn to the class. Point to one student and encourage the student to repeat the question: "How many pencils do you have? Answer, "I have two pencils." Ask students, "What is different in my sentence?"

Encourage students to compare the two sentences by writing them on the board or a shared screen. Point out the number two and the plural marking on the noun pencil. Ask students what they have in their bag or desk. "Do you have books in your bag? How many books?" Prompt students to answer, "I have ___ books."

Explain, "In today's lesson, we will learn to use numbers to talk about more than one thing. We call the form of the noun plural when there is more than one. In your native language, do nouns become plural?" Have students explain the plural form in a common native language or one or two various native languages if there is a variety in the class. For example, Mandarin marks only people for plural, as in wǒ (singular first person) and wǒ men (plural first person). Acknowledge that comparing to one's native language can often help clarify grammatical structures in English.

If possible, have some examples of the objects in the classroom. Have one or two students come to the front and demonstrate by asking about the objects. "How many stamps do you have?" "How many letters do you have?" Have the class repeat chorally as a student holds up the objects: "four books; three stamps; five letters."

Tell students that in this lesson, they are also going to learn how to ask for help finding places and show they are thankful for getting help.

Present: "Ask Questions"

If you have multimedia capability in your classroom, prepare to play the video for Lesson 11 of Let's Learn English. Tell students that the video will show Anna asking Marsha questions about their neighborhood.

Have students repeat when the video pauses. If you do not have multimedia in your classroom, have two students read the script for the video at the end of this lesson. It may help to draw boxes on the board or put up papers on the wall in several places around the room. Write the labels, library, mailbox, bank, and store on the papers or in the boxes. Then, students can walk between the points as they act out the conversation.

After students view the conversation, hand out copies of the script at the end of this lesson. Ask, "What does Anna need to know?" Let students respond with the names of the places or the services offered: return books - library; get cash - bank; buy stamps - store; mail letters - post office or mailbox.

Ask, "How does Anna find out what she needs to know?" Let students respond with 'questions' or 'ask a friend.' Tell students, "Let's practice finding out about our neighborhood."

Practice 1:

Hand out the Activity Sheet. Instruct students to find a partner and match the words on the activity sheet. Instruct the students to write three places in their own neighborhood on the sheet. Then have students ask their partner about the places in their neighborhood. When one partner has been asked, tell students to turn to the next pair of students and change partners. Continue until they have asked three people.

Have one pair come to the front. Ask the students to report on what they learned using the sample conversation:

"(Partner's Name) lives in a neighborhood where there is a place to buy stamps, a library /a place to read books, and a place to get cash."

Notice whether students are using plural forms of the nouns correctly. If they are not, hold up some of the sample objects and review how to say the plural forms.

Self-Evaluate

Ask students what they think about the strategy, Ask Questions. Did they learn from talking with their partners? Will they try to ask questions other times they are learning English? Have students write in their learning journals or on an 'exit pass' what they learned about the strategy Ask Questions in class today.

Expand

Say to the students, "You can use the strategy Ask Questions to help you learn in other areas. People are usually happy to answer questions when you ask them politely. You will be surprised at how much practice you can get in speaking English if you make it a habit to ask questions whenever you can in English. Give it a try the next time you need to learn something new, and let me know if it works for you!"

Assignments for more practice

Have students listen to the Speaking Practice video and say the new words for this lesson. After the vocabulary section, the video teaches some common phrases to give directions.

The Pronunciation Practice video teaches how to use rising intonation to clarify information or ask a question.

See the Activity Sheet for this lesson at the end of this lesson plan or online. Have students work with a partner to write directions to the school from a nearby location.

What is CALLA?

This lesson is based on the CALLA approach. The Cognitive Academic Language Learning Approach (CALLA) is an instructional model for second and foreign language learners based on cognitive theory and research.

CALLA integrates instruction in priority topics from the content curriculum, development of the language skills needed for learning in school, and explicit instruction in using learning strategies for academic tasks.

The goals of CALLA are for students to learn essential academic content and language and to become independent and self-regulated learners through their increasing command over a variety of strategies for learning in school. CALLA can be used in ESL, EFL, bilingual, foreign language, and general education classrooms.

A list of CALLA learning strategies follows. These strategies were researched by J. Michael O'Malley and Anna Uhl Chamot.
